During the past few years Canada must solve the trying problems that will have resulted from the great war. The equitable solution of the reconstruction difficulties will determine the status of western agriculture as to whether our prairie will be dotted with prosperous farms or the industry skilled by placing upon it an unequal portion of the vast burden of debt that has been created. Every farmer should keep posted—The Guide should be a weekly visitor in every farm home during this period.

Our Ottawa Letter

Extra Session Ended—Grand Trunk and Prohibition Measures Passed—
Letter May go to Privy Council—By The Guide Special Correspondent.

OTTAWA, November 10.—The last two days of the parliamentary session, the period covered in this brief letter, were days of strenuous activity. As is always the case at Ottawa, when the House is endeavoring to wind up its business, there is much uncertainty as to when the end will come. It is usually a race with the clock, and the present session was no exception to the general rule. But the last formalities were finally reached this afternoon at five o'clock, and the members went away with a promise made on the floor of the House that the next session will be commenced early in the new year in order that it may be concluded before the hot weather arrives. Members have had too much of summer sittings in recent years, and towards the close of the session they signed a petition requesting the government to see to it that the next does not run into the sultry days of June and July.

The passing by parliament of such important legislation as the Grand Trunk Bill and the prohibition measures, should have the effect of shortening the next session of parliament. I had almost included the Act to Amend the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Bill in this list, but this would not be quite safe, for there is no telling what the fighting men will do. Already there are signs that they are going to start a new agitation, and this may mean a re-opening of the inquiry into their demands when the House meets, and in that event much ground would have to be gone over again.

Grand Trunk Award Limited

Saturday saw the last of the Grand Trunk Bill in the House. The Commission, on a division of 97 to 25, concurred in the amendment put into the bill by the Senate, providing that the amount of the award of the arbitrators is not to exceed a sum which will give the shareholders an annual dividend of more than $6,000,000, inclusive of the $2,500,000 which must be paid annually on the $65,000,000 worth of four per cent. preference stock which the government took over on the same basis as debenture stock. On this revision several of the cross-benchers voted with the opposition in support of the amendment. They were: J. A. Campbell, Nelson, Man.; J. A. Maharg, Maple Creek; J. W. Kennedy, Gungahy-Storment; J. H. Barnham, Peterboro; J. E. Reid, Mackenzie; and Andrew Knox, of Prince Albert. It was the second vote cast in the House by J. W. Kennedy, the first member to take his seat in the House as the direct representative of the organized farmers. His first vote was with the government when he supported the report of the committee which dealt with soldiers' problems, and declined to support an amendment by Hon. Mackenzie King, calling for the return of the report to the committee.

Cross-Benchers' Attitude

J. A. Maharg, in the House on Saturday, explained why the members of the third party had adopted this course. It was, he said, because the amendment moved by the leader of the opposition did not mean anything. Mr. Maharg indicated that in the future the two old line parties might expect the third party to do some moving of amendments on their own account. His remarks which are worth quoting were:

"I had not intended to intervene in this discussion, but one of the statements made by the House leader of the opposition did not go down any too smoothly. I refer to his remark that it was evident yesterday from the vote that we were all perfectly satisfied with the report of the committee. There were at least a few who were not perfectly satisfied with that report, and they were probably less satisfied with the amendment that came from the opposition. If my hon. friend was not satisfied with the report, why did he, as leader, not see that the amendment submitted by the opposition meant something? It was a very significant circumstance yesterday that a number of seats on the opposition side that were vacant about the time that the vote was taken were perfectly warm shortly before that. When you put all these things together you can easily see which way the cat is jumping. It may be said of those of us who sit on the cross-benches, that, simply because we vote now with one side and now with the other, we are just changing the coin from one pocket to the other. Well, if conditions continue as they are the cross-benchers may themselves be forced to take a little of the initiative. If we are not perfectly agreeable with the way things come from our friends on the government side, and we find that the same applies to hon. members on the other side, then, as I say, it will be the duty of cross-benchers to take the initiative in matters which come before the House. The only reason why the report of the committee went through without opposition was the assurance given by the government that they would be prepared to make provision for every case of necessity that was brought to their attention. They also gave us their assurance that the door was not closed; that they were willing to consider everything that might come up, with the exception of cash gratuities or bonuses. It was only because of that assurance that there was opposition in the adoption of the report so far as the government and the cross-benchers were concerned. We shall have another session of parliament before long, and the sincerity of the action taken by the government in the intervening time will have an effect upon our attitude with regard to this report. When the next session comes and the opportunity presents itself, this matter can again be taken up."

"The Bottom the Day"

The feature of the closing days of the session was, undoubtedly, the passing of the government's prohibition bill. One of these is an amendment to the Canada Temperance Act, providing

A New Move Forward

The democratic revival in Canada, the new life of awakened Canadianism, is bestirring itself vigorously both in the East and in the West. In working to bring into operation the reforms advocated in the platform of the Canadian Council of Agriculture, the new Canadianism is advancing with sure, rapid progress, led by the guiding principle of the New National Policy, which is based upon the national welfare and not upon self-interested desires in connection with any particular occupation in which any class of Canadians is engaged.

The Council representatives of the organized farmers of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario, who were assembled for deliberation in Winnipeg last week, made a decision which will stand as a memorable milestone on the broad road of progress towards the realization of democracy in Canada. They decided that the time has come for action, with a view to the most effective coordination of the political effort thus far organized for the purpose of electing to the Dominion Parliament supporters of the New National Policy. Such a conference is to be called in the near future, at which the representatives of the political movement of the organized farmers will take counsel together.

The inspiring power of the New National Policy is the source of the political strength of the organized farmers, which has already been made manifest in some measure. That inspiring power is destined to make itself felt in the shaping of the national life in the years to come, if the awakened sense of citizenship throughout Canada in this critical time will respond with vigor and maintained faithfulness to the inspiring call of duty which sounds in that declaration of policy. The reports submitted at the meeting of the Council of Agriculture show that the whole country is aroused. This is indeed a time in Canada's history big with possibilities for natural progress and true democracy in the establishing of economic and social justice, and in intelligent endeavor to do away with sectional and all other differences, and so to work for the promotion of growth in national unity.

There is solid ground for hopefulness that the democratic movement initiated by the organized farmers is the interests of all Canadians for equal rights to all with special privilege to none, will work out to the accomplishment of these ends. There has never been at any previous time in Canadian history a national movement on more solid ground with clearer sight of high purposes, and such directness in working for their achievement. The inspiring force of this work, the life spirit of the political endeavor of the organized farmers, is devotion to the ideal of developing a national outlook, and a Canadianism that will not suffer the granting of special privileges to special interests or individuals by way of any form of legislation, but will place our laws upon the only foundation which they can justly have, namely, the greatest good to the greatest number of Canadian people. All true Canadian men and women will work together for the establishing of such principles in the public life of our country.

The unifying of Canada can only be done from the ground up. A true Canadian national sentiment cannot grow in any other way. The work of the organized farmers is proceeding in the only way in which it is possible to have sectional, racial or other discord resolve themselves into eventual harmony. We must all work to make Canada a nation with an ideal, a nation great in the character of its people. We must all work, if we would be true Canadians, to have those ideas prevail in the law-making bodies which we elect.

Canada's National Status

Every Canadian has reason to regard with satisfaction the utterance which came from the lips of the heir apparent to the Crown which is the visible symbol and head of the Empire. In his address to a large and representative audience in Toronto, on the eve of the close of his visit to this country, it was an utterance, needless to say, which the representatives of the British Government accompanying him for that purpose, were responsible for. But that such an utterance should have been made, with the Prince of Wales as its medium, is an event rightly to be characterized as historic, in the true sense of that grievously misused word.

Defining the status of Canada, as a sister nation of Great Britain in the sisterhood of self-governing nations within the Empire, the Prince of Wales said:—

The Dominions are therefore no longer colonies; they are sister nations of the British nation. They played a part in the war fully proportionate to their size, and their international importance will steadily increase. Yet they all desire to remain within the Empire, whose unity is shown by common allegiance to the King. That is the reason why, if I may be personal for a moment, I do not regard myself as belonging primarily to Great Britain, and only in a lesser way to Canada and the other Dominions. On the contrary, I regard myself as belonging to Great Britain and to Canada in exactly the same way. This also means that when I go down to the United States next week I shall regard myself as going there not only as an Englishman and as a Britisher, but also as a Canadian and a representative of the whole Empire.

Time was when Canada was described as "a British possession." That time has vanished far into the past. The colonial idea, too, has become obsolete. As the Prince of Wales expressed it, Canada is not a daughter state, owing allegiance to a mother state. Great Britain does not "own" Canada in any sense in which it is not equally true that Canada "owns" Great Britain, and Manitoba "owns" Saskatchewan, and Saskatchewan "owns" Manitoba. The position of Great Britain in the Empire is simply one of primacy, which may be expressed by a phrase the Romans used—"primum inter pares," that is, "first among her equals."

Primary Producers the Victims

Typical of the results achieved by the Board of Commerce is the manner in which the decree issued by that tribunal fixing the prices of pork products resulted simply in the packers passing the reduction along to the producers, who were thus made the victims of the Board's action. Every time the Board has issued a decree fixing the price of food products the primary producers have been in this manner the ones to suffer.

Between the primary producer and the ultimate consumer the chain of causes of the high cost of living has acted simply as a transmitter conferring upon the primary producer the penalty of being made the scapegoat. The result is that primary producers have gone out of business, and are going out of business, in great numbers.

Districts of Canada with abundance of coarse grain, suitable for a prosperous livestock industry, and in which it is to the national interest that the livestock industry should be in every right way encouraged and promoted by governmental action, are being denuded of that vitally important industry. Reports to this effect were submitted at last week's meeting of the Council of Agriculture by representatives from the East and from the West. The facts are daily becoming more widely known. Their importance surely does not need to be insisted on.

Ontario's New Government

On Friday morning, last, the new Ontario Government, headed by Premier Drury, was sworn in at Toronto. When the United Farmers of Ontario achieved their sweeping success at the polls, shoulder to shoulder with the forces of labor, in the recent general elections in that province, certain public men and newspapers, still unable to adjust their thinking to the new era, could do no more than profess to regard what had happened as a freakish vagary of the Ontario electorate. They expressed their opinion that a cabinet could not be formed; in fact they were quite scornfully confident about that. But the cabinet which has been formed is, by general consent in Ontario, an excellent one; the high character of its members and their competence to carry on the administration of the public affairs of the province are without question.

Premier Drury has announced that half-a-dozen members of the two old parties have assured him that they will stand by the new government if any want of confidence motion should be brought up in the legislature, and that he has been informed also by several others that they will support the new government in regard to all legislation which appeals to them as being in the interests of the welfare and progress of the province.

This is satisfactory in affording additional proof that what happened at the polls in Ontario means the ending of the old era of blind partyism. And what happened at the polls in Ontario is symptomatic of the process that is going on in the minds of thinking men and women all over Canada.

A Needed Electoral Reform

The promise was made several months ago by Premier Borden that a "Speaker's Conference" would be called to consider Proportional Representation in connection with the new Dominion Elections Act. The National Industrial Conference at Ottawa in September, it will be remembered, passed unanimously a resolution declaring its satisfaction in "the declaration of the Prime Minister, on behalf of the Government, that a Speaker's Conference will be called to investigate the merits of Proportional Representation," and urged that "such action be taken without delay." The fact that Proportional Representation is a plank of outstanding importance in the platform of the United Farmers of Ontario is but one of many signs of the times which should serve as a reminder to Ottawa of the promise made by the Dominion Premier.

Unregulated Public Carriers

A matter of importance to which the Council of Agriculture gave attention at its recent meeting is the need of bringing the lake and coastwise carriers, which at present are outside the control of any authority having jurisdiction, in the public interest, over their traffic rates and their traffic methods, should no longer be in that anomalous condition of not being subject to supervision, like the land carriers. The manner in which lake rates on grain have been mounting to over higher altitudes would well stand investigation. The Council passed a resolution declaring its opinion that the lake shipping and coastwise traffic should be brought under the control of the Board of Railway Commissioners. Methods of combination and high finance piracy are by no means confined to dry land in Canada.

The Dominion Franchise

In attending to the slight revision of the Farmers' Platform, rendered necessary by recent public events, the Council of Agriculture has struck out the plank calling for the repeal of the Wartime Elections Act, which has disappeared from the Dominion statute book. In place of that plank, the Council has formulated a declaration that the new Dominion Elections Act to be framed at the next session of parliament should be based on the principle of establishing the Dominion voters' lists in each province on the provincial franchise.

That women should have the franchise on an equality with men has from the first been a plank in the Farmers' Platform. From the beginning of their existence, the Grain Growers' organizations have championed the cause of equal suffrage; they have seen it as a plain, undeniable, fundamental fact that if there is to be government of the people, by the people, for the people, it must be recognized that women, too, are people equally with men, and equally with men are entitled to a share in the shaping of human conditions.

In recognition of the fact that there are injustices in the operation of the existing naturalization law as it affects women, the Council added to the Platform the recommendation for an act based on personal naturalization only, and not on certain relationships, as specified in the provisions of the existing act having reference to women.

That the franchise is the most sacred right of citizenship is the consideration which should be kept in mind unfailingly in the framing of the law conferring it, and should equally be kept in mind in any and all dealing with it thereafter by the elected lawmakers. Unjust tampering with the franchise is the greatest, because the most fundamental, of all possible crimes against democracy and the institutions of self-government. The first of the duties of citizenship is to maintain absolute respect for the sacredness of the franchise.

The Duty to the National Lines

A vigorous declaration was made by the Council of Agriculture at its recent meeting in favor of a determined policy on the part of the Dominion Government for developing business for the railway system which the people of Canada now find themselves in possession of. This is a primary duty which the present Dominion Government owes, and which any Government at Ottawa in the future will owe, to the taxpayers of Canada. The management of the country's publicly-owned railway system will have to be conducted with vigor, efficiency, and a wholehearted determination that nothing will be left undone that can be done towards making it eventually pay.

Everything must be done that the Government can do to promote the business of the national railway system, and its subsidiary express and telegraph systems. The people of Canada find themselves in ownership of these systems, not as a result of the working out of a policy of public ownership of public utilities but as an inheritance of the recklessness which has prevailed at Ottawa in past years in squandering public money and public resources and the public credit in furtherance of schemes of railway promoting and the construction of needless duplications of mileage across the face of Canada.

The rigid compulsion of necessity enforces the lesson that these 29,000 miles of railway must now be made to yield the greatest possible return for the heavy price they have cost the people of Canada. It is with nothing short of amazement that the public have read these words spoken by Hon. J. D. Reid, Minister of Railways to the Union Farmers' event, in his speech introducing the resolution in connection with the bill for the purchase of the Grand Trunk and the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Now, Mr. Chairman, the Canadian Pacific Railway system is a great one. It has done great work for Canada, and the fact of the government owning and operating a system equal to that of the Canadian Pacific Railway should not in any way allow any influence or advantage to be exercised against the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The Canadian Pacific, to which the people of Canada have given in cash and in lands, to say nothing of the enormous total of tax exemptions, something between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000 (making a conservative valuation of the lands), has demonstrated abundantly its ability to take care of itself. For any man in public life to display callousness towards this corporation at the expense of the national railway system would be a gross failure of duty to Canada.

Every public man should do his utmost to make the national railway system as successful as possible in every way. The interest of the Canadian people in this regard is as plain as day. There is no possible excuse for any Government attempting to carry water upon both shoulders.

The Guide has in its possession a copy of the circular letter (No. 216) dated October 24, which was issued from the head office of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, in Toronto, to every member of the association, calling for an opinion "in order to lay full evidence before a Cushing committee as to the tariff requirements of your industry." The circular is signed by E. J. Davis, chairman of the Tariff committee, and J. E. K. Bristol, manager of the Tariff department of the C.M.A. As noted in The Guide last week, these conferences between a Cabinet committee and groups of the beneficiaries of the protective system are being held in private. This secrecy of tariff-making is protested against in a plank of the Farmers' Platform. Protectionism is an evil thing, which grows in the dark, avoiding the sunlight of publicity.

The Belgian parliament has passed laws raising both the import and excise duties on spirituous liquors to four times the old rates. The increase in duties is expected to very considerably reduce the consumption of liquor in Belgium. The duties on woollen goods, amounting to 95 per cent., imposed by the Canadian tariff will also have the effect of preventing many people from wearing warm clothing this winter.

The Grand Trunk Pacific, and other railways, have cost the people of Canada many millions of money, and will cost millions more. At the same time the construction of these railways has made fortunes for a number of individuals through the increase in land values they have created in farm lands and townships. If the land value created by railway construction went into the public treasury, new railways would pay for themselves. As it is the government pays the cost and a few individuals reap the benefit. The taxation of land values would greatly assist in the solution of railway problems.

The secretary reported in behalf of the publicity committee, and dealt with the question of publishing literature in other languages than French and English.

It was resolved that at the discretion of the executive a selection of the lectures issued by the Chinese Council of Agriculture be published in some English language with the English text running side by side with the main text.

At Tuesday afternoon's session, the council heard an interesting address by E. A. Partridge, of Hingham, one of the promoters of the farmers' organization, who spoke on the development of the political movement. Mr. Partridge was warmly thanked for his interesting address.

A report was received as the conference held in Winnipeg, recently, to consider the distribution of arrendings, at which the Dominion Livestock Commissioner, Mr. Arkell, suggested that the Council of Agriculture should make recommendations as to establishing a permanent system for handling the matter.

After introducing the interests both of the Grain Growers of the West, as producers, and the dairymen of the East, as consumers, it was unanimously resolved:—

"Believing that at this time a special need exists in Eastern Canada for standard stock food, we would recommend that the Federal Government, through the Livestock Branch of the Department of Agriculture, be invited to continue to act as intermediaries between the different interests throughout the present crop year. The Council is quite full of sympathy with any action tending to restrict the free exportation of such standard stock food, whether in the form of screenings or screenings in any form, as in their opinion the knowledge of such similar communities should at no time be restricted for the advantage of any manufacturing or feeding interest.

Board of Governors

The policies of the Board of Commerce center in the same principle, and a resolution was passed to the following effect:

That the Canadian Council of Agriculture be reappointed before the House of Commons and present a case there, first, on the fact that the actions of the board to date have done much to stimulate and demand production of livestock, especially in the prairie industry, and security, on the fact that evidence advanced before the Parliamentary Committee on the High Cost of Living, has been gained, and the placing of responsibility of the Canadian manufacturer and the protective tariff for high costs of living to the consumer and high costs of production in the factories in Canada, has been neglected, and that the presentation of such case be left in the hands of the executive."

On conversion to German

The following telegram was sent from H. B. Crown, of Portsmouth, and was received with sadness:—

--Representatives of the cheese factories in Palawan met here today, and voted unanimously in favor of launching immediately a large co-operative company of dairy farmers to take over and operate cheese factories and creameries throughout Ontario, of which there are over 1,000. Provisional directors were appointed. They re-asserted me to win the consent their best wishes and their assurances that the dairy farmers of Ontario, will soon be benefitted from a big way.

The Political Movement

An introduction to the discussion of the political situation and the course of the council in the future, reports were received as to what has already been accomplished in the past.

It. M. Johnson reported that the Saskatchewan political organization, which is a separate and distinct organization from the Grain Growers' Association, had the stated idea of promoting political action solely for federal purposes. He said that his organization was not interested either in formulating platforms or issues, having already accepted the platform issued by the Canadian Council of Agriculture. The Canadian Council of Agriculture and the affiliated provincial associations were regarded by the Saskatchewan political organization as the formulating agency. The object of the Saskatchewan organization, Mr. Johnson pointed out, had been directed with considerable outcome towards seeing the people secure their own elections. He reported the results of the "Liberty Drive" in adherence to the new political movement in Saskatchewan. Organizations had been on a basis of agriculture and socialism.

It would take all winter to complete the census, but up to date the political fund established in Saskatchewan amounted to $50,000. With the object of drawing to the support of the Farmers' Platform all other classes in the community, organizations were held in connection in the cities of Saskatchewan, with the idea of carrying accurate information and knowledge regarding the Farmers' Platform to every people. Cooperation between the organized farmers' movement and the people of Prince Albert, Saskatoon, Regina, Moose Jaw, North Battleford, Swift Current and Weyburn, had already been developed, and, as Mr. Johnson pointed out, their combined objective was to win the next election before a single candidate was nominated.

Materials and Methods

W. R. Wood reported for Manitoba, and said organization had provided most assistance in the Brandon case, which had become an example for the other districts in Manitoba. Mr. Wood reported that there was no provincial political organization in existence, and that political action had been confined so far to Brandon, Winnipeg, Dauphin, Pellymouth and Springfield districts. The feeling of the organized farmers in Manitoba, so far as it could be ascertained, seemed to favor the complete control of any political movement to the Grains Growers' Association.

d. J. Morrison recruited the Chinese, and attributed the results partially to his belief in that provision to spontaneous action as the part of the people. They were more advised by the U.F.O. Central, officials of the used for action, but the action was left to the people in each district without control from the provincial center. The U.F.O. elected 45 members in a House of 115.

R. W. E. Thornhill pointed out that the T.F.O. had 40,000 members at the present time but got 100,000 votes for its candidate in the recent election. He gave to Mr. Morrison native credit for spreading the spirit in Ontario, which induced this general support in the T.F.O. cause.

Mr. Mortenson believed that the support to the Canadian Council of Agriculture platform is a future federal election would be very large.

M. M. Haisman, president of the U.F.O., said that independence is political thought, the goal which the U.F.O. has seen for five years, rather than the economic doctrine which had long prevailed in ethnocentrism in Western Canada, had been the motive force behind the political movement in Ontario.

Not so, the student of modern business spending a few weeks in the country. He views Canadian agricultural methods and equipment with amazement, and calls them Production Plants.

The Keystone of Democracy

Our Local Associations—By E. H. Burnell

LORD Gossett has said, "The Allied Governments are pledged to the subordination of the League of Nations, but it is only the enlightened opinion of the people of all lands that will make it a living power."

It should be equally true that while the organized farmers are pledged to the ideal of a real and working democracy with the highest and purest political life, yet these ideals can only become realities through the resolution of these ideas in the hearts of our people on the land. The great forward movement of the rural people of Canada, which has been so slowly developing through the long years, is at last like a great tide sweeping every-thing before it, and while it surges with it the promise of great good to all the people of Canada, we should not lose sight of the fact that it also brings heavy responsibilities, not only for those who may be chosen to lead it, but for every individual member of that great class of voters—our farm men and women.

Until we, every one of us, are willing to accept our share of responsibility, accepting the same by interest and participation in our own organization, which has made possible the attainment of power by the people, we cannot expect a real and satisfying democracy.

This power will be used for the good of all the people, only if the people themselves do their part.

The Price of Democracy

The price in which democracy turns is the individual citizen. If the citizen is ignorant, selfish and narrow, the government will reflect these conditions in proportion as they obtain among electors.

The question then is, how can we have an intelligent and alert electorate, ready responsive to any action for service on the part of its representatives in Parliament?

It is evident that the citizen must be informed and must be kept in touch with his fellow-citizens, so that his opinions can be molded and solidified into an active public opinion.

If we will follow out and strengthen the method, which has been used by the organized farmers since they first organized, the formation and use of local associations, I believe we can have these conditions.

There seems to be grave danger that in the heat of successful political action we may forget and neglect our local organization.

If we divorce our political activities from our association I believe we weaken both. One trouble seems to be that we either do not understand the real meaning of political effort or that we are too willing to take the professional of party politicians a view of politics. The latter seems to be that politics is a kind of national game to be played by the few and the many. Some farmers were supposed to always support the one side and never to always bring in the other; it did not seem to matter which so long as they remained divided. When the farmers began to organize to better their own conditions they soon found that in order to do so, they must have some laws changed and others made. In other words, they had to effect legislation, because certain laws already affected them in a business way.

When, for instance, the organized farmers secured changes in the Grain Act in one suggested that this had any remote connection with politics. At every local meeting and every district and provincial convention a little bird seemed to whisper "keep out of politics." In other words, be sure and divide at election time. The women were taught that politics was a dirty game, from which they must stand aloof but they and their dairy lands.

Influences of Political Conditions

But through all these years of plodding organization effort on the part of the farmers a light gradually began to shine until now it seems as if the truth had been told and conveyed nearly our whole rural people. The realization that politics is public business, and that every man and woman not only has the right but should be keenly interested in the conduct of their own business. The farmer has for years been accused of "not his religion with his wheel," but was always justified against taking his position with his association or with his organized effort to better the conditions of himself and his fellow-workers. I do not believe that we will ever go back to former political conditions in this country. I believe that the farmer and his wife, through the education that they have received by meeting with their neighbors in their local associations, have gradually but surely come to a realization of the real nature and function of real political action. The farmer knows now that his efforts at production are limited by political conditions and his wife knows that her home surroundings are influenced by these same conditions.

An Opening Field

A great field lies open before our local associations, a great chance to develop citizenship, to weld the different elements of our rural population into a strong and intelligent people, a people who will strive for the good of all and not for the enrichment of a few.

Local associations should be organized on practical lines, the effort should not be made, so much to have a large local, as to have the plan of meeting conveniently placed and then to make as many of the farm people within a radius which make it possible for them to conveniently attend. A local of 20 or 25 families may be more successful than a much larger one in membership which spreads over too much territory. Farmers have not time to attend many meetings, therefore, the local association should be made to fulfill all the functions to which local organizations can properly be applied.

The local association will prosper in proportion as it is of service to the community.

It should aim to give people opportunity for discussion and study of the productive side as well as to the business and political incidents of farming. It should give full scope for social life thus uniting and building the sympathy of the younger members of the community. What about the future of our country unless our young people of the farms have something besides just hard work and light pleasure to occupy their thoughts. There is so much work for our local associations to do that there never would be any question about keeping these alive, if it were not that nearly every community has for many organizations of a nature which tend to divide the people, and they thus bring about as they are a condition locally as is caused in a national way by our old party system of politics. Now that the farmers have formed their party chains and come together for the good of all let us hope that we will break away from the other methods of division and come together often for the good of the community.

The Power of Association

It is to the best interests of my whole nation that the farm people should come together in their local associations. There will be more to be learned from and given them a better understanding of the problems of the other classes which make up our nation.

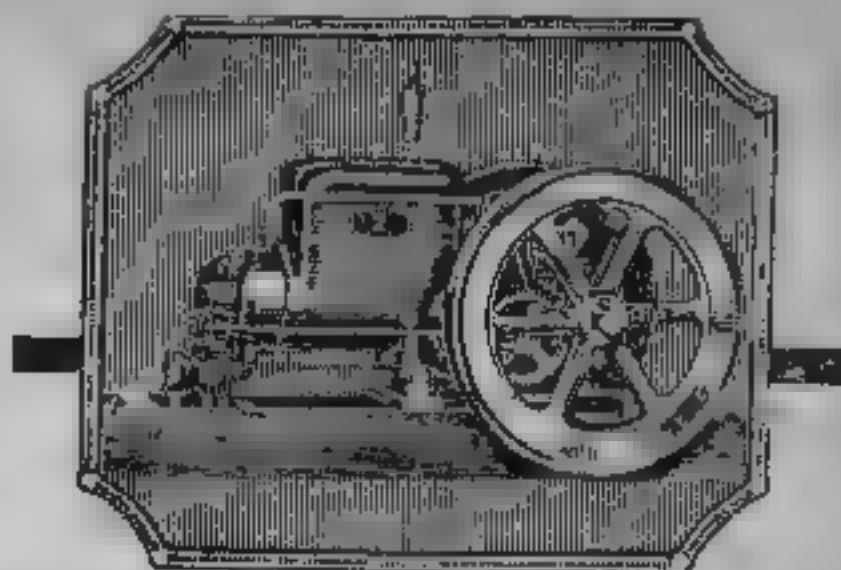

I overheard a farmer saying last evening that in his district they did not need their local association because having a mill in their town they had a good market for their wheat. What a narrow view of the function of a farmers' association.

Our organization should take the best in seeing that justice is done to our returned soldiers. There is the hundred and one problems connected with their re-establishment in the land and in the various other industries that we cannot think show responsibility. There is the problem of our non-English speaking neighbors, men who are making their way at home in Canada and of teaching them high ideals of citizenship.

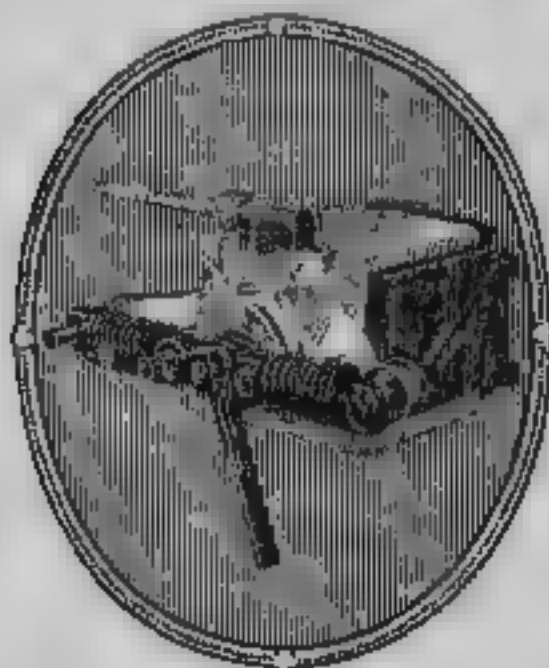

The farmers' association will have to pave the way for a better understanding between organized farmers and organized labor, for unless there is more of a sincere median between these two great bodies of workers, we will suffer as a nation. It is only by a fusion of more of the idealistic spirit of labor with the more practical steps of the farmer on the land that we can have a more and enduring government. Let us then not neglect our local associations now that we are succeeding in our efforts to obtain better representation in parliament; because the keystone of our democracy is found in the moral brother of our rural people in these circles of citizenship.

I am writing you this letter to express my deep concern over the recent statements made by you regarding the organized farmers. You have asserted that they are attempting to establish "class rule" in Canada. This is a serious accusation, and I feel compelled to respond to it. The organized farmers are not seeking to establish "class rule," but rather to secure fair and equitable treatment for themselves and their families. They are simply asking for the same rights and privileges that are enjoyed by other citizens of this country. It is a pity that you, as a Minister of the Interior, should make such a statement. It reflects poorly on your understanding of the situation in the West and on your respect for the rights of the people.

Put something by for a sunny day!

WHEN the horizon brightens with an opportunity that may lead to your success and prosperity, do not let it find you unready to take it on.

Through lack of capital, many men have been forced to see their opportunities pass. In many cases all that was required was a very small sum to invest.

A few dollars saved each week or month, deposited to your credit in a savings account at The Bank of Toronto, with the interest it earns, will soon accumulate to a substantial sum. Have it ready when the call comes for your venture.

Remember the Annual Meeting

Why we should stop and think about the work the delegates are to do in Winnipeg next week

Nearly 35,000 farmers "getting together." That is the meaning of the annual meeting of the Company in Winnipeg next week.

Of course they can't get together in one place at one time. That's why they send delegates.

But they do "get together" in spirit and in object, not only at one time but all the time. That is what results in the "Organized Farmer in Business."

The Farmers' Company simply means that the Organized Farmers have "got together" with a common purpose—the better handling of their own business. The more these same farmers continue to get together the greater will be the success they make of their own Company.

It would be a great thing if all these members would stop and think about the annual meeting while it is going on next week. Each would realize that the delegates are there representing him—working for him.

Each would realize too that the delegates, the whole 340 of them, working alone could not accomplish the success of the Farmers' Company. The directors they elect could not do it—nor the management—nor the employees.

It is the farmer himself who must do it.

It was the farmer who was responsible for the Company coming into existence and for its success up to the present. On the farmer himself rests the responsibility for still further progress through the Company.

If we could all sit down and think about that, it would mean a fresh impulse of strength for the work to be done in the Farmers' Business Organization.

There is another reason for giving thought just now to the affairs of the Company. The new Local Boards have just been elected for the year. They can do much more for the progress of the Company and the interests of the farmers of their districts if they know that every member of their local has the "get together" spirit.

This is not only for members of the Company but for all farmers. Every farmer in the West whether he holds shares or not—along the work of the Organized Farmer in Business, if he has the "get together" spirit. Let every farmer stop next week and think for a little while about the importance of the farmers being in business. It will help the work the delegates are doing on his behalf.

Demands Fair Play

C A fair play for the woman is the demand of the day. It is a demand that is being heard in every corner of the world. It is a demand that is being heard in the halls of Congress, in the chambers of the State Legislatures, in the courts of law, and in the homes of every woman. It is a demand that is being heard in the hearts of every man and woman who is true to the principles of justice and equity.

The demand for fair play for the woman is not a new one. It has been heard for centuries. It has been heard in the voices of the great philosophers, the great statesmen, and the great writers of the world. It has been heard in the voices of the great reformers and the great leaders of the woman's movement. It has been heard in the voices of the great women of the world, who have fought for the rights of their sex with courage and determination.

The demand for fair play for the woman is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a human being. It is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a citizen. It is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a worker, as a mother, as a wife, and as a woman. It is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a person who is entitled to the same respect and consideration as every other person in the world.

The demand for fair play for the woman is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a human being. It is a demand for the recognition of her rights as a citizen. years of struggle. Yet we go on and on, with no end in sight. We have fought for the right to vote, for the right to hold office, for the right to serve on juries, for the right to work in every occupation, for the right to receive the same pay as men, for the right to the same education, for the right to the same respect and consideration as men. Yet we have not won these rights in full. We have won some of them, but we have not won all of them. We have won the right to vote, but we have not won the right to have our votes counted. We have won the right to hold office, but we have not won the right to have our offices respected. We have won the right to serve on juries, but we have not won the right to have our service respected. We have won the right to work in every occupation, but we have not won the right to have our work respected. We have won the right to receive the same pay as men, but we have not won the right to have our pay respected. We have won the right to the same education, but we have not won the right to have our education respected. We have won the right to the same respect and consideration as men, but we have not won the right to have our respect and consideration respected.

It is time that we demand fair play for the woman. It is time that we demand the recognition of her rights as a human being, as a citizen, as a worker, as a mother, as a wife, and as a woman. It is time that we demand the recognition of her rights as a person who is entitled to the same respect and consideration as every other person in the world.
